Dear Mr. Washburn:

Thank you for the great presentation you provided for the Office of Career Services at Fayetteville State University today. The information you shared with the students was directly related to the resources and information we share with students in an effort to prepare them for the world of work. Your presentation was inviting for students and lead them to feel comfortable to ask questions to gain better understanding.

As we begin our spring semester and prepare for the spring career fair and other career development related activities, I am sure that students will remember the sage advice that you provided for them and that it will be of value as they approach graduation.

Again, thank you for the passionate and direct manner in which you engaged our students and for making what is often times "just another presentation" to college students a real interactive dialogue about the importance of properly planning for great performance and success in the world of work.

Sincerely,
